Help Your Neighbors

In Need

From Your Own Back Yard

Often people in need don't have regular access to fresh fruit and vegetables. Farmers and Gardeners can help by growing an extra row of fresh produce and donating it to local food pantries. No donation is too small or too large. It all adds up: a bushel of sweet corn can feed 36 people, a bushel of tomatoes can feed 15 families, and a bushel of zucchini can feed over 20 people.

How to Participate in the 2010
“Grow a Row” Project

Information supplied by NeighborImpact &
Food Pantry Staff

Produce that gardeners wish to donate through the “Grow a Row” project to local food banks and organizations serving those in need may be taken directly to any of a number of places. Detailed information organized by county is below. It is recommended that a call be made before dropping off to confirm the hours and that someone will be present to receive the produce.

Also: NeighborImpact has two refrigerated trucks that are in the Bend/Redmond area 5 days per week that could potentially pick up excess product. We have a walk-in cooler on and many agencies come and pick up at the warehouse. To schedule a drop-off at the truck or warehouse, contact Steve Murray, 548-2380 x108.
